Mayor's Spotlight

Women's History and Present: Facing Boston's Gender Wage Gap

During the month of March, we celebrate Women's History. It is important that we celebrate the accomplishments of women in our city and beyond, so that we may learn from their lived experiences. When I first took office in 2014, I pledged to listen, learn and lead. It quickly became clear that leading on gender equity was essential to our city's success.

Because I care so deeply about the success of women in the City of Boston, I established an Office of Women's Advancement, whose mission is to help facilitate full and equal participation to enhance the quality of life for women and girls in Boston. Since its inception in 2014, the Mayor's Office of Women's Advancement has taken a deeper dive into several issues that affect women and girls today, beginning with equal pay. Women make up the majority of our city, but like every city and most companies in the nation, women — and especially women of color — are underrepresented and underpaid in our workforce.

To lead, we had to listen and learn from real data and business leaders. We had two options: ignore the gender wage gap and hope it goes away over time (data tells us that we will reach pay equity by the year 2152) or do something about it. For us, there never really was a choice. We had to act.

Together with the Mayor's Office of Women's Advancement and the Boston Women's Workforce Council, we created a report detailing the gender wage gap in Boston. This first-of-its-kind report drew data directly from employers and businesses themselves. A tremendous amount of work went into this study, three years in the making. Over 112 thousand employees from Greater Boston participated — representing $11 billion in annual earnings.

Here's what we learned: Boston has a 23 cent wage gap, meaning women make on average 77 cents for every dollar a man earns in Greater Boston.

This report is the first of its kind in the country. This is the first time actual wage data has been reported both anonymously and voluntarily. This is a groundbreaking moment in tackling the gender wage gap. It establishes a wage gap baseline for the City, by which we will measure our future progress — and what the wage gap looks like in individual industries. This report is the first of many steps we will take towards action to finally achieve gender parity in the workplace and make Boston the premier place for working women.

© Isabel Leon

We know that the gender wage gap is a complex problem. It requires a multifaceted solution. We were excited to see Equal Pay legislation pass on Beacon Hill. It will do a lot to bring transparency to the hiring process. But we as a City need to be doing more than legislation.

Over the past year, we have launched a series of free salary negotiation workshops for women who live or work in Boston. We have joined forces with the American Association of University Women (AAUW) in an initiative to make Boston the first city to close the gender pay gap. To help accomplish this, we implemented a large-scale, grassroots program to provide AAUW Work Smart salary negotiation workshops to 85,000 women — at least half of Boston's working women — in the next five years. So far, we have trained over 2,500 women.

We'll continue to engage our businesses, our schools, and our government as partners in all of our efforts. We'll continue growing our numbers and partnerships with the 100% Talent Compact, a voluntary pledge signed by over 180 companies indicating their commitment to closing the gender wage gap in the workplace. We'll continue to create a culture shift from the ground up.

We will continue to make sure Boston is the best city in the U.S. for working women. We do this because it's not only the right thing to do — but because it's important for the economic vitality and the future of our City. In the future, the Mayor's Office of Women's Advancement will continue to address the many variables that contribute to the health and wellbeing of women in our City: including childcare affordability and eliminating human trafficking.

Boston is lucky to have partners so committed to women's equity in the workplace, and our work wouldn't be possible without their support. In 2017, it's time we stop talking and start taking action to close the wage gap. Working together, we will move confidently in that direction.

Matters of the Heart: Statins and Women's Heart Disease

Heart disease is the number one cause of death in women. Statins can be an important part of heart disease prevention in women, especially in seniors. Statins are used to lower cholesterol, and are among the most prescribed medications. A few familiar names of statins include: Lipitor (atorvastatin), Pravachol (pravastatin), Crestor (rosuvastatin), and Zocor (simvastatin).

So how does cholesterol work? Your body needs some cholesterol to perform properly. If you have too much cholesterol in your blood, it (plaque) will stick to the walls of your arteries, narrow your arteries and even block your arteries.

If you are struggling to maintain good cholesterol levels, your doctor will order a blood test, encourage a good diet and encourage that you increase your exercise. If, after a few months when cholesterol blood values do not improve, your doctor will probably recommend that you take a statin daily.

Statins interfere with the production of cholesterol in your liver. They lower the bad cholesterol (LDL) levels and raise the good cholesterol (HDL). Statins can also slow the plaque formations in your arteries, prevent further blockage in your arteries and help prevent a heart attack or stroke!

Here are some lifestyle changes that will also help to improve your heart health:

- Quit smoking and second hand smoke.
- Eat a healthy diet, avoiding saturated fat, trans fat, refined carbohydrates (most goodies)
- Avoid salt.
- Exercise more. Sit less.
- Maintain a healthy waist girth: less than 40 inches for men; less than 35 inches for women.
- Ask about your family history; especially heart attacks, strokes, mini strokes and diabetes.

If you start any statin medicine, follow up with frequent doctor appointments and blood tests.

If this medication does not agree with you (nausea, muscle aches), your doctor will prescribe a different dose or a new statin. Do not discontinue the statin on your own. Your elevated cholesterol will return. Years ago, people talked about their blood pressure, blood sugars, arthritis, etc. Now they talk about their good and bad cholesterol. Know yours!

For more information, speak to your primary care doctor.

The MA “Circuit Breaker” Income Tax Credit for Homeowners and Renters Age 65+

The Massachusetts “Circuit Breaker” tax credit program is a program for adults age 65 + whose property taxes and half of the water and sewer bills are more than 10% of their annual gross income (or for renters, if their rent is greater than 25% of their income) and who meet a few other rules. Adults can get this income tax credit even if they owe no income taxes. Also, you can get this refundable tax credit if you also receive a property tax exemption from their town Assessor.

The value of the refundable credit can be as high as $1,070 for 2016 tax filers. To obtain the credit, you must file a MA Income Tax “Form 1” and the “Schedule CB Form” for the 2016 tax year. You may file to get a refundable credit for the last 3 years* tax returns, if you have not yet done so. In addition to this year’s credit, the maximum credit you may receive for the past 3 tax years is: $1,070 in 2015; $1,050 in 2014; and $1,030 in 2013.

Basic Requirements for Eligibility:

- Must be a Massachusetts resident, age 65 or older
- Must own or rent residential property in Massachusetts as your primary residence
- Must have an annual income of:
 - $57,000 or less for a single filer
 - $71,000 or less for a head of household
 - $86,000 or less for joint filers

Tax Day is April 18th

You are ineligible for this tax credit if:

- You are married and do not file a joint a return
- You are a dependent of another tax filer
- You receive a federal or state rent subsidy directly, or live in a property tax exempt facility
- Your property is assessed at a value greater than $720,000

Thank you to the Massachusetts Association of Councils on Aging (MCOA) and the Boston Tax Help Coalition for assisting with information on this tax credit.

Taxpayers who have received/expect to receive health insurance credits need to bring proof of ALL household income*

WINTER / SPRING 2017 CLASS SCHEDULE

My Life, My Health

My Life, My Health: Chronic Disease Self-Management Program (CDSMP) is a FREE informative, interactive workshop, designed for adults who live with the daily challenges of one or more ongoing health conditions. It will give people with chronic conditions (such as high blood pressure, arthritis, heart disease, cancer, asthma, etc.) and/or their caregivers the knowledge and skills needed to take a more active role in their health care. The book, Living a Healthy Life with Chronic Disease is provided for each participant. Workshop meets 1 day per week for 6 weeks.

Location: Landmark at Longwood, 63 Parker Hill Ave. in Roxbury Crossing

Day and Time: Thursdays from 1:30 to 4:00 p.m.

Start Date: February 16, 2017 – Ongoing Classes

OR

Location: Harvard Vanguard Chestnut Hill / West Roxbury, 291 Independence Dr. in Chestnut Hill

Day and Time: Mondays from 9:30 a.m. to 12:00 p.m.

Start Date: March 13, 2017

OR

Location: Adams Street Library, 690 Adams St. in Dorchester

Day and Time: Tuesdays from 1:00 to 3:30 p.m.

Start Date: March 21, 2017

Tai Chi: Moving for Better Balance

This evidence-based workshop focuses on preventing falls and improving balance through the regular practice of Tai Chi. Participants will learn 8 single forms, derived from the traditional, well known, 24-form Yang Style Tai Chi. The forms are tailored to older adults who wish to improve balance and mobility, and consequently, reduce the risk of falling. Performance of Tai Chi movements is also closely coordinated with natural breathing and stress reduction. FREE classes meet twice a week for 12 weeks.

Location: Julia Martin House, 90 Bickford Street in Jamaica Plain

Day and Time: Mondays and Thursdays from 3:00 to 4:00 p.m.

Start Date: March 20, 2017

A Matter of Balance

Many older adults experience a fear of falling. People who develop this fear often limit their activities, which can result in physical weakness, making the risk of falling even greater. A Matter of Balance: Managing Concerns About Falls is a program designed to reduce the fear of falling and increase activity levels among older adults. FREE classes run for 8 weeks and include fun videos, group discussion, a safe surroundings survey, and mild exercise to increase strength and flexibility. Starts on February 22, 2017 – Ongoing Classes

Location: Kit Clark Senior House, 1500 Dorchester Ave. in Dorchester – Wednesdays from 10 a.m. to Noon.

Girl Engineer

An excerpt from the story featured in the Memoir Project's Volume 4, Imagine Such a Life."

By Carol Blair

In 1969, after my freshman year of civil engineering courses at the University of Vermont, I wanted a summer job doing engineering work, but instead I was behind the counter at Al's

French Fries. When I'd asked my advisor, professor Milbank, about a summer job, he'd shrugged his shoulder. "The guys usually get the field jobs with the highway department, but that's dirty work. I don't know," he said before walking away. I was stunned by this absurdity. What does he mean, "dirty work"? I'm washable! What I didn't understand then was this man, approaching retirement, couldn't get his head around the idea that a woman could be an engineer.

After two weeks of making creamy cones, I got a brief interview with Fred Koerner, a civil engineer with his own business. He met my price--$1.75 an hour—and I had my start. I'd be helping four employees with surveys, concrete test, and deed searches, making maps and copying plans. Mr. Koerner's office was by the Burlington Coca-Cola plant near Lake Champlain, five blocks down the hill from my parents' home. I rode my bicycle so I could be quick as I collected and distributed plans around town. Except for the secretary, the office staff was all male. This was normal for me. From infancy when my parents put my crib in a bedroom with two older brother to my college classes with a hundred boys and men studying engineering, I'd always been surrounded.

That summer, I mastered a blueprint machine that collated plan sheets up to fifty inches wide and spewed the original back at me. I plucked each Mylar drawing from the table, laid it on a sheet of yellow blueprint paper from another table, and then lined it all up and fed it into the rollers. Then I'd catch the original and stack them on still another table.

Frequently stationed alone in that ammonia-filled room, I'd make as many as seventy-five copies of a set of two hundred sheets. I challenged myself to finish each set a little faster than the last, but my dedication and enthusiasm did not save me from the boredom and weariness. Once, I closed my eyes, laid my head on my arms, and rested on the machine—right in front of the feeder rolls. Oh, how it felt to stop. For a moment I drifted off, but then I felt my hair shift. Wait! My hair! Oh, no! I grabbed my braids and hit the reverse button. My hair was wound in both directions around the rollers. In a desperate tug-of-war with the machine, I won my ragged braids back and kept my scalp. The only evidence: a few hairs hanging from the rollers. It was many years before I told anyone. I hated to feed the idea that girls weren't suited for engineering work...

Knowing Our History

For Women's History Month, we at the Elderly Commission honor the women in our lives who have inspired, empowered, and impacted us the most.

*Emily K. Shea, Commissioner
Commission on Affairs of the Elderly*

"My mom, Eileen Shea, used to say she loved snow days because she had so much fun being home with her kids. Being loved like that is a gift. My aunt, Pam Shea, is a pioneer in the aging field—my role model—and she opened my eyes to one of the most rewarding careers I could ever hope for."

"From the first day working at the Elderly Commission, Joella Thomas has been a positive inspiration for me."

Jane Boyer, Advocacy Representative

"I admire my mother Jane Mullaney, who was a widow raising 7 children on her own. An independent hardworker who loved her children unconditionally."

"Carmelita Munevar is important to me because she has taught me to be perseverant. She impacted me in a way that shows hard work and accomplishments can be done no matter what your situation is."

Luis Ottonelli, Finance Assistant

*Tiffany M. Favers,
Area Agency on Aging Director*

"So many times in my life when I've struggled, I've found comfort in Maya Angelou's words. She's so honest and insightful that it's like advice from a beloved family member. She continued to write, lecture and teach until her death at age 84."

"My courageous and beautiful mother, Nancy Doherty teaches me the importance of giving back to community with grace, celebration and dedication. She has broadened my perspective and cultivated my sense of adventure."

Jullieanne Doherty, Administrative Director of Outreach and Engagement

Tijissha Jones-Horner, Administrative Director of Volunteer Programs

"Besides going into labor on her birthday to have me, my mom Claudia Jones-Bullock is important because she taught me the true meaning of tenacity by overcoming addiction and illnesses. My mother's most important lessons to me are God makes no mistakes, never give up, and treat all people with love. Love you, and thank you mom."

"My Godmother Dorothy Johnson is a religious, independent woman who has helped raise me to be the person I am today. My Grandmother Orie Anne Hammonds is the sweetest woman you can ever meet. Her love for her family is amazing and her actions exemplify what family should be."

Porshia Gray, Principal Personnel Officer

Ellen Roth, Director of Development

"Debra Anderson was my grandparents' caretaker for about 10 years and became part of our family. Miss Debra's strength and her selfless, devoted care for others inspire me."

"Aside from all the things my mother, Patricia Hammes (nicknamed Treasha), did well such as teaching manners, opening her home to family and friends, persevering when times were tough and maintaining a sense of humor, she also taught me what not to do: not to hold a grudge and not to take life for granted. This maternal legacy lives on in my role as a mother."

*Tara Hatala,
Director of Nutrition*

"My mother Mary Beth Kelly has always been the most consistent person in my life. She is the first person I call about anything, good or bad."

Meghan Murray, Advocacy Representative

*Annette Richardson,
Senior Companion Program Director*

"I try to; even now, carry myself in such a manner as to make my mother Juanita Richardson proud. I have learned to be a good listener, and to be available to assist those who need help."

"In the early 40s, my grandma Ganda (our nickname for each other: 'my friend') left her husband and escaped at midnight with her only son to return to her homeland in Sierra Leone so our dad could be schooled in English and not just Arabic. My friend's bold and decisive sacrifice, termed rebellious then, opened our world to opportunities that our families still enjoy."

Francis Ngagba Thomas, Jr., Deputy Commissioner of Administration & Finance

*Andrea Burns,
Director, Age-Friendly Boston*

"My mom's name is Anne Burns. Her parents gave her the name Fahima, which means understanding in Arabic. Her parents were immigrants from the Middle East, traveling to the United States after the Armenian Genocide. She has always been a very positive person, no matter how difficult life can be. These wonderful qualities inspire me to be more positive and more persistent in my own life."

NEW ENGLAND BAPTIST® HOSPITAL

Sr. Celtics

presented by NEBH

© Brian Babineau

On January 26, BCYF's Tobin Community Center was the scene of a senior fitness bonanza, thanks to Boston Celtics Legend Tom "Satch" Sanders, Boston Celtics guard Terry Rozier, Celtics mascot "Lucky" The Leprechaun, Celtics Dancers and New England Baptist Hospital's Sr. Celtics fitness initiative (now in its third year).

The Sr. Celtics program, presented by New England Baptist Hospital (NEBH), encourages senior members of the Mission Hill community to maintain an active lifestyle through participation in fitness and health education classes. NEBH is committed to improving the health and well-being of those living throughout our community, especially seniors.

Over 100 seniors from the Mission Hill Community attended the event, which featured a dance class workout led by Celtics Team Dance Director Marina Ortega and some Celtics Dancers, health and fitness tips from NEBH RNs Margaret McCarthy and Joanne Petrillo, a healthy dinner and a Lucky Dunk Show.

5 FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS: ABOUT NUTRITION AND AGING

By Tara Hatala, Director of Nutrition at the Elderly Commission and Registered Dietician

I was giving a presentation on nutrition at a senior center, and when I asked if anyone had any questions, every hand shot up in the air. In the twenty years I have been educating people about nutrition, I have found a lot of misconceptions and misinformation. There's a lot to know when it comes to aging and nutrition, so here are five common questions I am asked:

1. Why do I need your advice at my age?

I tell people of all ages, especially older adults, that it's important to eat as well as possible to remain independent. We already know eating well is important to our health. But connecting the dots may not be as obvious. For example, if you don't eat enough protein and remain physically active, you are more likely to lose strength throughout your body. Weakness factors into falling. Some folks never fully recover from a broken hip and become unable to get around unassisted, so eating well and taking care of yourself is critical to living independently.

March is National Nutrition Month.

2. Aren't carbs bad for you?

No. Next question. Carbohydrates are a very important part of one's diet and break down into glucose in the blood stream. Your brain runs on glucose and has first dibs on those carbs you eat. While your body can make glucose from protein, fat and alcohol, it prefers the carbs you eat. They can be a problem if you are eating too many of them, or have diabetes and don't count your carbs. Choose whole grain foods and fruits as they contain not only carbs, but also vitamins, minerals and fiber as well!

3. Why is it so expensive to eat healthy?

It doesn't have to be. Eating healthy doesn't require you to eat organic produce all day, every day. I prefer people focus on making the best choices that fit their budget, cooking skills and resources, time constraints, taste preferences and body mechanics. Check out page 24 for a budget-friendly, healthy recipe!

4. What are the best foods to eat?

While there is no best food to eat, there are some foods that have powerful benefits on different systems. I am a fan of the research that shows certain foods which can slow cognitive decline. Otherwise put, some foods are great for your brain! Among them are green leafy vegetables, beans, nuts and berries. Stock up on frozen berries so you can eat what you want without worrying if the rest will spoil quickly!

5. Isn't it true that fresh is best?

The longer food is exposed to light and air, the greater the nutrient loss. If you can buy in-season produce grown within 100 miles of your home, go for it. If not, I always recommend frozen. Evidence shows that frozen foods can retain just as many, if not more, nutrients than fresh, because they are processed almost immediately after harvesting. And since so much of our food is grown out-of-state, this is a great choice!

As always, consult your primary care doctor before changing your diet or exercise plan.

Recipe

INGREDIENTS

- ½ c. quinoa
- 2 tbsp. olive oil
- 1 medium onion
- 1 carrot
- 2 stalk celery
- 3 clove garlic
- 1 tbsp. smoked paprika
- Pepper
- 1 yellow pepper

DIRECTIONS

1. Cook the quinoa according to package directions.
2. Meanwhile, heat the oil in a Dutch oven or large heavy-bottomed pot. Add the onion, carrot, and celery and cook, covered, stirring occasionally, for 6 minutes.
3. Add the garlic, paprika, and 1/4 teaspoon of pepper and cook, stirring, for 1 minute. Add the peppers and cook, stirring occasionally, for 5 minutes.
4. Add the chickpeas, broth, and 1 cup water and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer until the vegetables are tender, 5 to 8 minutes. Stir in the vinegar and cooked quinoa. Serve topped with parsley, if desired.

Project “Spread the Love, Boston” says Thank You!

This February, countless organizations and individuals came together to help Mayor Martin J. Walsh and the Elderly Commission create, decorate and deliver over 6,500 Valentine’s Day cards to homebound seniors living throughout the city of Boston!

A special shout-out to the Boston Public Library, Boston Centers for Youth and Families and Boston Public Schools for decorating thousands of cards each and helping our program be such a success!

Tremendous thank you to all of our “Card-Decorating” Partners:

Boston Senior Home Care and Boston Elder Info,
Building Impact (and their corporate partners),

Thank you to all of the City of Boston departments, agencies and the countless staff who participated in helping make hundreds of seniors smile this winter!

We appreciate our “Card and Meal Delivery” Partners, who made sure the cards got hand delivered to seniors with their meal in time for Valentine’s Day:

Boston Senior Homecare,	Harbor Pacific Restaurant,
Central Boston Elder Services,	Jewish Community Housing Corp,
City Fresh Food, Ethos,	Kit Clark Senior Services Kitchen,
Family Foods Services,	and Spinelli's.

Martin J. Walsh, Mayor of Boston

"My mother Mary is a constant source of strength in my life: from paving the way as an immigrant in America, to raising my brother John and me, to supporting me when I had childhood cancer. She always believed in my dream of being Mayor of Boston, ever since I was a little boy. I would not be where I am today without her love and encouragement!"
