CIVIC ENGAGEMENT AND EMPLOYMENT

WE ENVISION…
...a Boston in which older adults have access to work opportunities as well as to rewarding volunteer opportunities.
...a Boston where older residents are involved with making decisions in both public and private sectors and are regularly consulted by elected officials.

WE HEARD…
• Older Boston residents want more work opportunities.
• Half of survey respondents disagree that there are adequate employment opportunities available to older adults in Boston.
• Older Boston residents need information about available volunteer opportunities that are close to where they live and fully utilize their skills and talents.

“I’m relatively healthy. I’m already 70, but I still want to keep working. I applied for at least 20 jobs, but nobody hired me.”
– BOSTON RESIDENT

“There are not adequate opportunities for seniors to get together to volunteer on a regular basis. This type of interaction could benefit the overall community and provide regular socialization for seniors.”
– BOSTON RESIDENT

“I am trying to figure out where to get information about volunteering. Specifically, I was thinking of some place on the web.”
– BOSTON RESIDENT
Residents' top recommendation for improving civic participation and employment was to improve the dissemination of information about available opportunities.

Many older residents do not feel that their perspectives are heard by local policy makers or leaders.

36% of survey respondents are dissatisfied with the extent to which local policymakers take into account the interest and concerns of older residents.

WE ARE…
Refocusing on Workforce Development
In 2014, the City refocused its workforce development strategy through the creation of the Mayor's Office of Workforce Development (OWN). OWN seeks to promote economic self-sufficiency and works to connect low-income residents with job training and employment opportunities and to promote lifelong literacy and educational pathways.

Enhancing and Aligning Civic Engagement
In 2014, the City, recognizing the importance of Civic Engagement, elevated it to a cabinet level position. In 2017, Mayor Walsh launched Boston’s first city service plan, Emerging Boston. In addition, a new volunteer unit was created at the Commission, aligning the senior volunteer programs and expanding volunteer management capacity. The Commission continues to recruit additional older adults who qualify for the Property Tax Work-Off Program after the City expanded the opportunity from a 50 person limit to 100 people. This increase in participation allows us to further develop opportunities for older adults to use their skills and expertise to further the work we do in City departments.
