CITY of BOSTON

Hello Boston!

We've heard from so many of you that January's increase is coming at a time when, already, it felt like you were barely hanging on. Which is why, last month, I introduced an expanded residential tax relief package, which must be passed by the state legislature, to provide financial assistance to Boston residents impacted by the spike in property taxes.

The legislation would provide immediate relief for all residents, and for older residents specifically, it would expand eligibility for the "41C" senior exemption—and increase the exemption amount. And while we are hopeful that stakeholders and legislators will join us in delivering the relief our communities need, I want to share existing resources to help you save money on your property taxes right now; you might be eligible for one or all:

- Boston's Residential Exemption can reduce your property tax bill by up to $3,984. Apply by April 1.
- The Senior Exemption "41C" offers qualifying older residents up to $2,000 in tax relief. Apply by April 1.
- Our Senior Property Tax Deferral Program allows qualifying older adults to defer all or part of your property tax bill, a 1% loan paid back, when the property is sold or transferred. Apply by April 1.
- Age Strong's Property Tax Work-off Program invites older adults to "work off" up to $2,000 from your property tax bill by volunteering with City departments. Apply by July 11.

Assistance is available to help with eligibility & applications. Sign up for your clinic appointment at 617-635-4366. For more information, visit boston.gov/prop-tax-clinics.

CITY of BOSTON

Hello Boston!

We've heard from so many of you that January's increase is coming at a time when, already, it felt like you were barely hanging on. Which is why, last month, I introduced an expanded residential tax relief package, which must be passed by the state legislature, to provide financial assistance to Boston residents impacted by the spike in property taxes.

The legislation would provide immediate relief for all residents, and for older residents specifically, it would expand eligibility for the "41C" senior exemption—and increase the exemption amount. And while we are hopeful that stakeholders and legislators will join us in delivering the relief our communities need, I want to share existing resources to help you save money on your property taxes right now; you might be eligible for one or all:

- Boston's Residential Exemption can reduce your property tax bill by up to $3,984. Apply by April 1.
- The Senior Exemption "41C" offers qualifying older residents up to $2,000 in tax relief. Apply by April 1.
- Our Senior Property Tax Deferral Program allows qualifying older adults to defer all or part of your property tax bill, a 1% loan paid back, when the property is sold or transferred. Apply by April 1.
- Age Strong's Property Tax Work-off Program invites older adults to "work off" up to $2,000 from your property tax bill by volunteering with City departments. Apply by July 11.
